Rainy Day Adventure Basics

Exploring in the Rain!

For the most part, we believe there's no such thing as "bad" weather, just weather that takes a little more planning! Rainy day adventures are beautiful, less crowded, and full of wildlife that LOVES coming out in the rain.

Keep the kids dry!

RAINSUITS

Full body rainsuits are an AMAZING option for kids. They can sit (or fall!) into puddles, and still stay completely dry. There are no gaps in the material for water to sneak in.

Size up!

When buying a suit, get a size bigger, especially when you are carrying your baby!

Buy used

You can often find used suits at kids consignment shops and online buy/sell/trade groups!

RAINCOATS & BOOTS

Go tall!

Tall rain boots are better at keeping you and you kiddos dry!

Make 'em warmer!

Insulated rain boots are great for cold days, or throw on a pair of wool socks!

Go big!

If you're carrying your baby, a larger rain coat can zip up & cover the both of you!

RAIN PANTS This one's for the parents!

In addition to your rain coat and boots, rain pants are wonderful for the adults. When you're carrying your baby, it can keep water dripping down from the carrier/cover from soaking your legs. When you need to pick up your tired toddler, you won't have to worry about their wet and muddy boots on your legs!

Baby Carrying Basics

Wearing your baby in the rain will help keep them warm & dry. Remember to dress with that in mind.

With a soft structure carrier, where the straps unbuckle, you can slip a toddler size rain jacket over the straps and then you have a rain protected carrier!

Don't be afraid to use an umbrella, it's quick, easy, and keeps you both dry!

Pro Tips

- Waterproof it!
Don't have fully waterproof gear? Get a waterproof spray and give what you do have an extra coat!
- Keep Yourself Dry
It's easy to focus on keeping your little ones dry, but don't forget yourself! It's no good to be cold and wet while your kiddos are off having a blast in the rain. Get yourself a coat and boots and splash along with them!
- Extra Clothes
Keep a change of clothes in the car, as well as a plastic bag to stash away wet gear & boots
